

University of Connecticut – School of Fine Arts – Department of Music
Student Covid Non-Compliance Policy
Spring 2022

Students in the Music Department are required to follow all University Covid policies and procedures. This includes policies and procedures that have been developed specifically for the Music Department, to address the challenges presented by music performance in the Covid era. These guidelines are available on the Department's website and will be emailed to students prior to the start of in-person instruction.

When students do not follow necessary policies and procedures, they will, in the first instance receive a verbal warning from the faculty or staff member who discovers the problem, and the incident will be reported to the Department Head.

In the second instance, the Department Head will provide a written warning, via email, and copying the student's academic advisor and the Dean. Further counseling may be advised to ensure compliance with Covid policies and procedures.

In the third instance, the student will receive a written warning as above and will be barred from participating in future ensemble performances. This may affect the student's grade, according to the ensemble director's syllabus.

Further non-compliance will result in the student being reported to the Dean of Students and penalties may include Code of Conduct violations in addition to the above.
